

Assistant Professor, Climate Science, Yale University

The Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences at Yale University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor appointment in the broad area of climate science, with an anticipated start date of July 2023 or later. Relevant fields include (but are not limited to) the physics of the Earth's atmosphere, ocean, and cryosphere; climate change; paleoclimate; and the dynamics of planetary and exoplanetary atmospheres and oceans.

We seek candidates who will develop outstanding research programs, who have strong prospects for exceptional scholarly impact and teaching excellence, and who will enhance the existing strengths of the Department and University. The successful applicant will develop and implement an independent, externally-funded research program, teach and advise students, and facilitate interdisciplinary research.

The Yale EPS Department is committed to fairness, equity, and inclusion of all people from all backgrounds. We value diversity among our students, staff, and faculty and strongly welcome applications from women, persons with disabilities, protected veterans, and underrepresented minorities. Yale University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, a curriculum vitae including a full list of publications, a statement of research interests, and a statement of interests in teaching, mentoring, and broader impacts. Broader impacts may include, for example, public education and outreach activities, impacts on diversity, equity, and inclusion, and other positive societal benefits. Applicants should arrange for three confidential letters of recommendation to be uploaded. Candidates must have a Ph.D. or equivalent degree at the time of hire. Applications should be submitted online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/114271>. Applications that arrive before November 15, 2022 will receive full consideration. For information regarding the Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences, visit our web site at <http://earth.yale.edu>. Questions regarding the application process can be addressed to Rebecca Pocock (rebecca.pocock@yale.edu).